Portal to the Highest realm

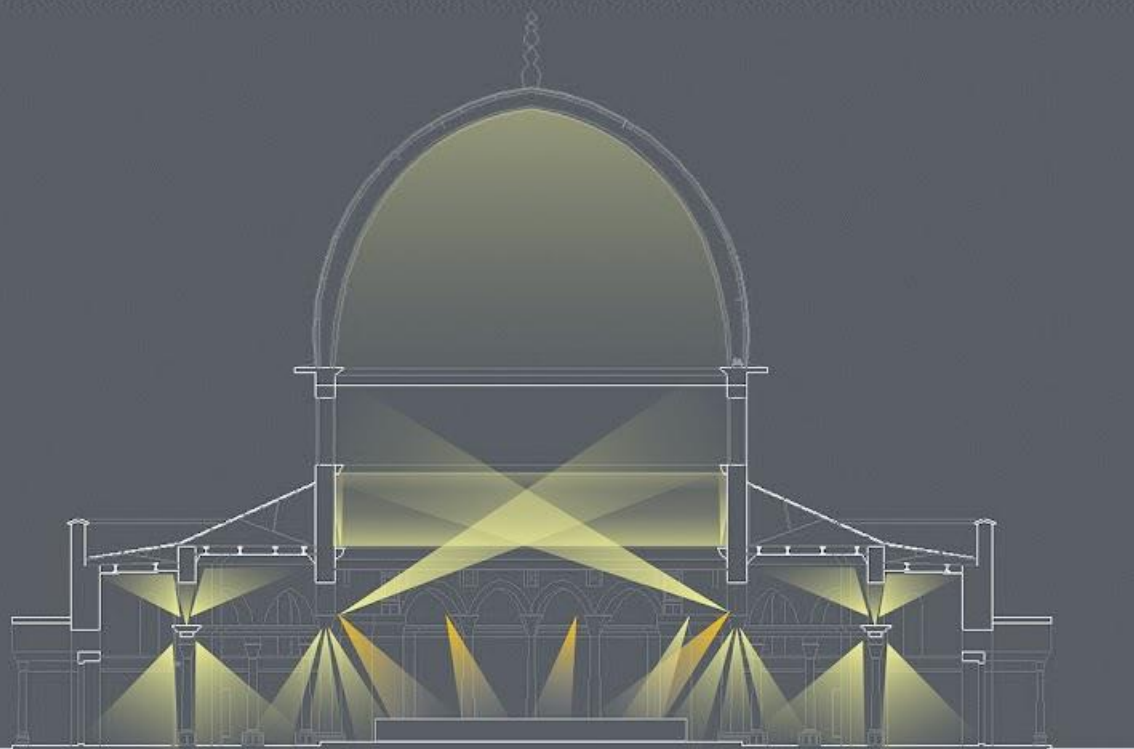

An aerial photograph of Jerusalem, Israel, taken at sunset. The city is illuminated by the warm, golden light of the setting sun, with the Dome of the Rock prominently featured on the right side. The city's walls and various buildings are visible, and the sky is filled with dramatic, dark clouds. The foreground shows a dark, silty area, possibly a dry riverbed or a construction site, with some trees and a small light source visible.

Moving Out of Poverty Why Microfinance isn't working in Palestine

Microfinance—once a Nobel Prize winning idea to lend, on trust, small amounts to ultra-poor women in order to start tiny businesses—is now a massive global for-profit industry in its third year of crisis. Lending institutions have collapsed, borrowers have committed suicide and studies say it no longer does what it promised: end poverty. The same conditions that brought failure around the world are now arising in Palestine.

Reem Abboushi runs a small women's organization based in the West Bank and is struggling, in the face of market and regulatory pressure, to keep the original vision of microfinance alive.

The Messenger of Allah (saw) said,

'Surely there will soon come a time when for a man to have land equivalent to his horse's rope from which he can see Bait al-Maqdis (the Blessed Masjid Al-Aqsa) will be better for him than the whole world!'

He (Abu Dharr (ra), the narrator) said, 'or he [saw] said, "Better for him than the world and everything in it!"
